TCCI backs Government's energy support for business

The Tasmanian Chamber of Commerce and Industry is the voice of business in Tasmania and is backing the Government's energy efficiency scheme for business, which has been announced today.

TCCI CEO, Michael Bailey, said just like households, businesses are also being affected by the increase in power prices.

"The price of power is one of the main issues that businesses are raising with me at the moment," Mr Bailey said.

"Power prices are having a significant impact on the business community and we need the state and federal governments to play their part to offer some relief.

"We are grateful that the Tasmanian Government is listening, and the energy efficiency scheme announced today will help.

"Initiatives like this, combined with coordinated action from the state and federal government to tackle spiralling wholesale gas and electricity prices will support business in Tasmania as we face the headwinds that are affecting the global and national economies.

"We look forward to working with the Tasmanian Government to ensure this program provides as much benefit to as many businesses as possible."
